the last few months to develop a community-oriented, grass roots strategy for community economic development. His presentation, "What turning the dollar over within the African American community can mean to Savannah's future," was met with enthusiasm. The key foundation of his strategy is getting the African American population to increase spending among their own ethnic group. Thereby creating more wealth and generating more jobs in their own community.

Hudson plans to return to Savannah in the near future with an expanded conference to share the plan with a broader segment of the community.

After the presentations, there was an enthusiastic question and answer period, followed by fellowship and networking.

The next Hungry Club Forum monthly breakfast will be held on Saturday September 6, 2008, at 9:30 a.m., in the Multipurpose Room Annex of the May Street YMCA. Successful businessman Tom Campbell will ask: why fifty years after the integration of the public schools, the Savannah business community is still segregated? Also, for investment opportunities, HCFS Board member and charter member Richmond "Rich" Ferguson will unveil his plans to develop a major commercial establishment at Montgomery and Anderson Streets.

Marika E. Brownlee Performs with the Boston Tap Company

Sean Fielder, Founder and Director, teaching choreography to Marika Brownlee.

Marika Brownlee, age 13 of Savannah, is currently performing as one of the members of the Boston Tap Company under the direction of Sean Fielder.

This weekend she will be in two performances -- at the 2nd Annual Beantown Tap Fest in Watertown, MA on Aug. 22nd and at Jacob's Pillow in Becket, MA on August 23rd. Later in September, the Boston Tap Company's show called Rhythm in the Night, is being performed for a second run; it was first performed in April as the premier show for this newly formed dance company.

Boston Tap Company is comprised of dancers from diverse backgrounds who are dedicated to preserving and advancing the art of percussive tap dance made famous by such great Hoofers as the Nicholas Brothers, Sammy Davis, Jr., Gregory Hines, Dianne Walker and other master artists.

Marika Brownlee is entering ninth grade. She is the daughter of Tina Kohout and Roosevelt Brownlee, Jr. of Savannah.
