AWOL Sound Design Class Releases Third Album

Members of the AWOL Sound Design Class at work

The students in AWOL's sound design program, known as The P.R.O.J.E.C.T.S. (The Positive Re-education Of Juveniles Everywhere Concerning The Streets), have completed the 22-week class and are about to celebrate their hard work and dedication with an album release party at the Lake Mayer Pavilion on June 26, from 4-7pm.

The students, who range in age from 13-22 and come from all over the city, spent nearly six months learning about music history, creative writing, music production and engineering while creating the music that appears on the album.

The songs were conceptualized, written and performed by local youth, and document their perspectives on issues ranging from injustice in the legal system to personal struggles faced growing up in the streets of Savannah.

The title, Dirty Water, is taken from one of the songs on the album, and is a metaphor for the flood of negative influences youth must rise above.

This group, which features poets, rappers, singers and an engineer, is the third class of students to complete AWOL's sound design program and release an album.

Unlike years past though, students won't be releasing a CD, but will instead package the album on download cards, each of which has a redemption code on the back allowing people to download the tracks from the Internet.

Being environmentally friendly was part of the reason for the switch.

The download cards use less packaging, and produce less waste.

In addition, two free AWOL Projects 3 ring tones will be made available through a community partnership with Cricket Wireless.

"Cricket has partnered with AWOL since our launch in Savannah last year and we are excited about being a part of the Lake Bash and offering free ring tones from the Projects 3 group to our Cricket family," said Tyler Proctor, District Director, Savannah.

This is the second year AWOL has hosted a Lake Bash for youth out at Lake Mayer that accompanied the album release party.

Among the many business leaders and supporters in attendance at the breakfast was the Stewart family.

She will celebrate her 6th birthday this summer and begins 1st grade this fall. Kyra has three older sister and an older brother, and enjoys picking flowers, princess stuff, and playing pretend. Light the Night is the society's annual fundraising walk to celebrate and commemorate lives that have been touched by cancer. Participants carry illuminated balloons along a two mile walk-white for survivors, red for supporters, and those carrying gold balloons due so in memory of those who have died from blood cancers.
